

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES PARKS FACT SHEET

OVERVIEW

Within the 1.17 million square kilometres of the spectacular Northwest Territories (NWT) are a multitude of beautiful parks and campgrounds.

NWT Quick Facts

- Capital city: Yellowknife
- Territorial Population: 42,810
- Total Area: 1,170,000 square km
- Eleven official languages including English, French and nine Aboriginal languages
- Number of Communities: 33
- Number of Territorial Parks: 33
- Number of National Parks: 5
- Largest Lake: Great Bear Lake

Tourism is the NWT's largest renewable resource-based sector and NWT Parks plays a key role in providing attractions, accommodations and services.

Through the Department of Industry, Tourism and Investment (ITI), the Government of the Northwest Territories (GNWT) operates 33 territorial parks throughout five regions of the NWT that include campgrounds, day use areas, wayside parks and a heritage park.

There are five National Parks in the NWT: Nahanni, Nááts'ihch'oh, Aulavik, Tuktut Nogait and Wood Buffalo. There is also one National Historic Site: Saoyú and ʔehdacho.

Visit www.nwtparks.ca to book a campsite or for more information about parks in the NWT.

The NWT Road and Campground Guide is available at NWTParks.ca to help visitors plan their adventure. This Guide is organized by highway routes:

- Great Slave Route: takes you to two communities located along the southern shores of Great Slave Lake - Hay River and Fort Resolution.
- Wood Buffalo Route: popular stops include viewing the salt plains and bison in Wood Buffalo National Park, white water rafting on the Slave River, and watching pelicans and cranes at the Slave River rapids.
- Waterfalls Route: features numerous waterfalls, rivers and lakes, excellent hiking trails, sandy beaches and great fishing spots.
- Heritage Route: extends northwest to Fort Simpson and then on to Wrigley. It will take you through a ruggedly beautiful region of forested hills, mountains and clear lakes.

- Liard Trail: features inspiring views of the Liard River and the Nahanni Mountains, especially at Blackstone Territorial Park.
- Dempster Highway: provides the opportunity to view wildlife and enjoy some of the most beautiful wilderness scenery in the world.
- Ingraham Trail: dozens of lakes, campgrounds, picnic sites, forest and ancient Precambrian rock through Yellowknife's cottage country.
- Frontier Trail: see historic Fort Providence, the Mackenzie Valley Bison Sanctuary, sandhill cranes and waterfowl on your way to Yellowknife and Great Slave Lake.
